

OGDEN MUSEUM
OF SOUTHERN ART

O-riginal Art Activities: Black Lives Matter Inspired by Mike Hartnett

Mike Hartnett, Born Scared, Archival pigment print

Mike Hartnett is a photographer based in New Orleans. His work ranges from portraits to documenting his neighborhood and the culture of New Orleans.

Imagine a world without racism in this O-riginal Art Activity inspired by Mike Hartnett's photography.

SEE MIKE HARNETT'S BORN SCARED IN LOUISIANA CONTEMPORARY, PRESENTED BY THE HELIS FOUNDATION AT THE OGDEN MUSEUM. CHECK OUT OGDEN MUSEUM ONLINE FOR MORE RESOURCES!

Supplies

Paper, Color Pencils, Pen, Pencil

Instructions

Step 1: The Black Lives Matter movement has brought national attention to the issue of racism in the United States. Imagine a world without racism. What would that look like? What would be different or what would stay the same in a world without racism?

Step 2: What would your daily life be like in a world without racism? Draw a picture or write a story about your day living in a world without racism.

Step 3: When you are done drawing and writing, use color pencils to color in your drawing or decorate the story that you wrote.

Step 4: Share your drawing or story with your friends and family. Ask them to share their ideas of a world without racism.

Vocabulary

Racism – when someone is treated unfairly because of the color of their skin

QUESTIONS? EMAIL

EDUCATION@OGDENMUSEUM.ORG

